1 DAY WATERCOLOR WORKSHOP

In my transparent watercolor paintings, I strive to show how light, and values and the skill of drawing almost always ensures a successful painting, both for me and for those seeing my work. The love of drawing has always been important with my art, and I consider myself a representational realist in that realism is a must in my paintings. Beginning many years ago in pen and ink renderings of wildlife, I found that I saw things that others did not and was able to translate what I saw on paper, and I have simply transferred this love of detail to watercolor. A pure transparency of watercolor is an absolute joy and pleasure when creating a painting, and though I can work in many other mediums, watercolor remains my passion and pleasure. In addition, I found that if my painting doesn't contain reds in some form, it is no fun! My one rule is very simple. Paint what you love, and you will always love to paint.
